

For Dog's Sake Grooming - Learning and sharing Worldwide!

Jessie Sidhu Palmer of For Dog's Sake Professional Grooming and Dog Sitting services in Kincardine loves what she does and is eager to expand the expertise she can offer to her clients and their fur babies. For that reason, Jessie just returned from a major groomer convention in Chicago.

"It was just an amazing time, learning about some new grooming options and techniques, plus getting to network and touch base with over 400 other groomers was fantastic. It was a chance to share ideas and learn from everyone there."

While local clients will continue to utilize her expanded knowledge and skills, more exciting for Jessie is an opportunity she has through the Groom for Good organization. This coming January she will be headed to Antigua, Guatemala, and for 11 days will be helping an area shelter, as Jessie explains.

"I volunteered for the trip because there was an urgent demand at the shelters for groomers. Each volunteer has to pay their own way, but it is a chance for me to help groom the dogs in the shelter so they are ready to be adopted. Groom for Good is a great organization, and with any luck this will be the start of an annual trip for me to be able to share my skills and show some love to dogs that really need it. Ideally, it will help find them a forever home."

Jessie is already booking appointments in November, so if your fur baby needs some loving attention to get ready for a Christmas portrait, be sure to book your session today! You can call Jessie at 519-386-9665, or check 'For Dog's Sake' on Facebook. The grooming studio is located at 684 Hunter Street in Kincardine.
